DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 22-35 are allowed. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The claimed invention is a monolithic optical transmitter and receiver pair comprising:

- A semiconductor substrate;
- An optical transmitter formed on a portion of the substrate;
- An optical receiver formed on the substrate, laterally adjacent to the optical transmitter; and
- An implanted isolation region formed on the substrate between the optical transmitter and the optical receiver, the isolation region isolating the optical receiver optically and electrically from the optical transmitter eliminating cross-talk between the receiver and the transmitter allowing the transmitter and the optical receiver to operate entirely independent from one another.

Reference Olbright et al. (US 5,266,794) do not disclose an implanted isolation region formed on the substrate between the optical transmitter and the optical receiver. In Olbright's device the transmitter and the optical receiver operate together.

Reference Hasnain et al. (US 5,136,603) is a stacked structure, where the claimed invention is a side-by-side device.

Therefore, the above references do not disclose the claimed invention of present application and claims 22-35 are allowed.
